Summary

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Affordable Care Act, or ACA) reauthorized funding for numerous existing discretionary grant programs administered by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). The ACA also created many new discretionary grant programs and provided for each an authorization of appropriations. Generally, the law authorized (or reauthorized) appropriations through FY2014 or FY2015. This report summarizes all the discretionary spending provisions in the ACA. A companion product, CRS Report R41301, Appropriations and Fund Transfers in the Affordable Care Act (ACA), summarizes all the mandatory appropriations in the law.

Among the provisions that are intended to strengthen the nation's health care safety net and improve access to care, the ACA permanently reauthorized the federal health center program and the National Health Service Corps (NHSC). The NHSC provides scholarships and student loan repayments to individuals who agree to a period of service as a primary care provider in a federally designated Health Professional Shortage Area. In addition, the ACA addressed concerns about the current size, specialty mix, and geographic distribution of the health care workforce. It reauthorized and expanded existing health workforce education and training programs under Titles VII and VIII of the Public Health Service Act (PHSA). Title VII supports the education and training of physicians, dentists, physician assistants, and public health workers through grants, scholarships, and loan repayment. The ACA created several new programs to increase training experiences in primary care, in rural areas, and in community-based settings, and provided training opportunities to increase the supply of pediatric subspecialists and geriatricians. It also expanded the nursing workforce development programs authorized under PHSA Title VIII.

As part of a comprehensive framework for federal community-based public health activities, including a national strategy and a national education and outreach campaign, the ACA authorized several new grant programs with a focus on preventable or modifiable risk factors for disease (e.g., sedentary lifestyle, tobacco use). The new law also leveraged a number of mechanisms to improve health care quality, including new requirements for quality measure development, collection, analysis, and public reporting; programs to develop and disseminate innovative strategies for improving the quality of health care delivery; and support for care coordination programs such as medical homes and the co-location of primary health care and mental health services. Additionally, the ACA authorized funding for programs to prevent elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation; grants to expand trauma care services and improve regional coordination of emergency services; and demonstration projects to implement alternatives to current tort litigation for resolving medical malpractice claims, among other provisions.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated that the ACA's discretionary spending provisions, if fully funded by appropriations acts, would result in appropriations of approximately $100 billion over the 10-year period FY2012-FY2021. Much of that funding would be for discretionary programs that existed prior to, and whose funding was reauthorized by, the ACA. While most of those existing discretionary programs continue to receive an annual discretionary appropriation, albeit at levels below the amounts authorized by the law, few of the new grant programs authorized under the ACA have received any discretionary funding. However, several of the new programs have received mandatory funds from the ACA. This report is periodically revised and updated to reflect important legislative and other developments.

Introduction

Implementation of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Affordable Care Act, or ACA),¹ the health reform law enacted in March 2010, is having a significant impact on federal mandatory—also known as direct—spending.² To help achieve its goal of increasing access to affordable health care, the ACA authorized premium tax credits and cost-sharing subsidies to help offset the cost of purchasing private insurance coverage through the health insurance exchanges; enhanced federal funding to expand state Medicaid programs; and provided tax credits for small employers. The ACA also authorized a variety of new spending under the Medicare program.

In addition, the ACA included numerous appropriations that are providing billions of dollars of mandatory funds for new and existing programs. For example, the law funded temporary insurance programs for targeted groups prior to the exchanges becoming operational, and provided funding for grants to states to plan and establish exchanges. It provided a permanent appropriation, available for 10-year periods, for a new Center for Medicare & Medicaid Innovation to test and implement innovative health care payment and service delivery models. And it established four special funds—and appropriated amounts to each one—to support primary care, public health, comparative effectiveness research, and the administrative costs of the ACA's implementation (see text box).³

Special Funds Established by the ACA

The Community Health Center Fund (CHCF), to which the ACA appropriated a total of $11 billion over the five-year period FY2011-FY2015, provided supplementary funding for the federal health center program and the National Health Service Corps (NHSC), both administered by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). The Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act (P.L. 114-10) provided two years (FY2016-FY2017) of additional mandatory funding to the CHCF for health centers and the NHSC. For more information, see CRS Report R43911, The Community Health Center Fund: In Brief, by Elayne J. Heisler.

The Prevention and Public Health Fund (PPHF), to which the ACA provided a permanent annual appropriation, is intended to support prevention, wellness, and other public health programs and activities administered by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and other agencies.

The Patient-Centered Outcomes Research Trust Fund (PCORTF) is supporting patient-centered comparative clinical effectiveness research over a 10-year period (FY2010-FY2019) with a mix of appropriations, some of which are offset by revenue from a fee imposed on health plans, as well as transfers from the Medicare Part A and Part B trust funds.

The Health Insurance Reform Implementation Fund (HIRIF), to which the ACA appropriated $1 billion, is helping cover the administrative costs of implementing the law.

¹ The ACA was signed into law on March 23, 2010 (P.L. 111-148, 124 Stat. 119). A week later, on March 30, 2010, the President signed the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act (HCERA; P.L. 111-152, 124 Stat. 1029), which amended numerous health care and revenue provisions in the ACA and added multiple new stand-alone provisions. Congress and the President have since enacted several other bills that have made more targeted changes to specific ACA provisions. All references to the ACA in this report refer collectively to the ACA, as amended, and to other related provisions in HCERA.

² Mandatory, or direct, spending generally refers to outlays from budget authority (i.e., the authority to incur financial obligations that result in government expenditures such as paying salaries, purchasing services, or awarding grants) that is provided in authorizing laws, as opposed to annual appropriations acts. Mandatory spending includes spending on entitlement programs (e.g., Medicare, Social Security).

Besides its impact on mandatory spending, the ACA also is having an effect on discretionary spending, which is subject to the annual appropriations process.⁴ Discretionary spending under the ACA falls into two broad categories. First, there are the amounts provided in appropriations acts for specific grant and other programs pursuant to explicit authorizations of appropriations in the ACA. Second, there are the substantial costs incurred by federal agencies to administer and enforce the health insurance reforms and other core requirements of the law. The two agencies primarily responsible for the ACA's implementation are the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), within the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), within the Department of the Treasury. Both agencies have requested additional discretionary funding in recent years to cover the costs of implementing the law.

This report examines the ACA's effects on discretionary spending. It first discusses all the ACA authorizations (and reauthorizations) of appropriations for grant and other programs. This information, along with actual funding amounts, is summarized in a series of tables. The report then reviews the ACA administrative costs borne by CMS and the IRS. Appendix A provides an overview of the enforceable discretionary spending limits (caps) and the annual spending reductions under the Budget Control Act of 2011.

This report is periodically revised and updated to reflect important legislative and administrative developments. The next update will occur after the President releases the FY2017 budget in early February 2016. A companion CRS report summarizes all the ACA's mandatory appropriations and the obligation of these funds.⁵

ACA Authorizations of Appropriations for Grant and Other Programs

The ACA authorized numerous new discretionary grant programs and provided for each an authorization of appropriations, generally through FY2014 or FY2015. Many of these provisions authorize annual appropriations of specified amounts for one or more fiscal years to carry out the program. Other provisions authorize the appropriation of specified amounts for FY2010 or FY2011, and unspecified amounts—such sums as may be necessary, or SSAN—for later years. A few provisions authorize multi-year appropriations, available for obligation for a period in excess of one fiscal year (e.g., for the period FY2011 through FY2014). Numerous other provisions simply authorize the appropriation of SSAN, in a few cases without specifying any fiscal years.

In addition, the ACA reauthorized funding—in most instances through FY2014 or FY2015—for many existing discretionary grant programs, primarily ones authorized under the Public Health Service Act (PHSA). They include most, but not all, of the federal health workforce programs administered by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). Funding authorizations for many of these established programs expired prior to their reauthorization by the ACA. However, the programs continued to receive an annual appropriation. Importantly, the ACA permanently reauthorized appropriations for the federal health centers program, the National Health Service Corp (NHSC), and many programs and services provided by the Indian Health Service (IHS).⁶

⁵ CRS Report R41301, Appropriations and Fund Transfers in the Affordable Care Act (ACA), by C. Stephen Redhead.

All the ACA's discretionary spending provisions that include authorizations of appropriations are summarized in a series of tables below. The provisions are organized by general topic under the following headings: Health Centers and Clinics (Table 2); Health Care Workforce (Table 3); Prevention and Wellness (Table 4); Maternal and Child Health (Table 5); Health Care Quality (Table 6); Nursing Homes (Table 7); Health Disparities Data Collection (Table 8); Emergency Care (Table 9); Elder Justice (Table 10); Biomedical Research (Table 11); Biologics (Table 12); 340B Drug Pricing (Table 13); Medical Malpractice (Table 14); Pain Care Management (Table 15); Medicaid (Table 16); Medicare (Table 17); and Private Health Insurance (Table 18).

Each table row provides information on a specific ACA provision, organized across four columns. The first column shows the ACA section or subsection number. The second column indicates whether the provision is freestanding (i.e., new statutory authority that is not amending an existing statute) or amendatory (i.e., amends an existing statute such as the PHSA). Amendatory provisions either add a new program to the statute or modify an existing one. The name of the administering agency or office within HHS is also included, if known. The third column provides a brief description of the program, including the types of entities and/or individuals eligible for funding,⁷ and gives details of the authorization of appropriations.

Finally, the fourth column shows the program's actual funding levels for FY2010 through FY2015 if it received any discretionary appropriations (or other funding) during that period.⁸ The FY2016 funding request, if applicable, is also provided.⁹ Funding from sources other than annual discretionary appropriations (e.g., ACA mandatory funds) is shown in parentheses. Unless otherwise noted, the funding figures represent final amounts reflecting sequestration and other adjustments. Many of the programs have seen their discretionary funding remain flat or decrease since FY2010.

All the discretionary funding listed in the tables in this report is provided by the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies (L-HHS-ED) annual appropriations act. If CRS was unable to identify specific appropriations for a program, then that is indicated by the phrase "No appropriations identified." In some instances a program may be supported with funds from another budget account.

In each of the larger tables with multiple entries (i.e., Tables 2, 3, 4, 6 and 9), the ACA provisions are grouped based on whether they reauthorize funding for existing programs or authorize funding for new programs. Where available, the table entry includes the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance (CFDA) number for the grant program.¹⁰ Unless otherwise stated, all references in the tables to the Secretary refer to the HHS Secretary.

Discretionary Appropriation Amounts To Date

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimated that fully funding the ACA's discretionary spending provisions would result in appropriations of almost $100 billion over the period FY2012-FY2021.¹¹ However, that figure is somewhat misleading because three programs—the health centers program, the NHSC, and the IHS—account for about $85 billion of the total amount. These programs were in existence prior to the ACA and were permanently reauthorized by the law.

Most, though not all, of the existing grant programs that were reauthorized by the ACA continue to receive annual discretionary appropriations. However, these programs generally are funded at levels below the amounts authorized by the law. The federal health center program (see Table 2) and the NHSC (see Table 3) are particularly noteworthy in this regard. Both programs have seen a significant decrease in their discretionary funding since FY2010 and have been supported by the CHCF. Indeed, CHCF funds have become the sole source of funding for the NHSC, which has not received an annual discretionary appropriation since FY2011. In addition, PPHF funds have supplemented, and in some cases supplanted, annual discretionary appropriations for a number of established programs, including ones that were reauthorized by the ACA.¹²

An examination of the tables in this report also reveals that few of the new grant programs authorized by the ACA have received any discretionary funding,¹³ though a handful have received PPHF funds.¹⁴ In most instances, the Administration has not requested funding for these programs in its annual budget, nor have the appropriators chosen to provide any funds. Under the current

Note: CBO’s estimate of ACA discretionary spending includes (1) amounts specified in ACA, plus estimated amounts for subsequent years (adjusted for anticipated inflation) where ACA specified an amount for the first year (FY2010 or FY2011) and authorized SSAN for subsequent years; and (2) estimated amounts for subsequent years (adjusted for anticipated inflation) where there is an appropriation for FY2010 under prior law and ACA authorized the appropriation of SSAN for later years. The CBO estimate does not include new ACA programs for which the law provided only an authorization for the appropriation of SSAN.

discretionary spending limits (see Appendix A), appropriators face challenges in maintaining funding levels for longstanding programs with an established funding history, let alone finding funds to implement new programs.

Expired or Expiring Authorizations of Appropriations

It was noted earlier that the ACA generally authorized (or reauthorized) discretionary appropriations through FY2014 or FY2015. Thus, most of the discretionary grant programs summarized in the tables in this report have funding authorizations that have expired. These programs are listed in Table B-1 in Appendix B. Table B-2 lists the programs whose authorizations of appropriations expire at the end of FY2016.

Administrative Spending on the ACA's Insurance Coverage Provisions

CMS and the IRS are incurring significant administrative costs to implement the ACA. Congress instructed CMS to provide a breakdown of funding for the federally facilitated exchange (FFE) in the agency's FY2016 budget submission. Table 1 summarizes CMS's administrative funding for FFE development and operations from FY2010 through FY2016. Overall, FFE funding during this period will total an estimated $8.367 billion.

CMS has relied on funding from a variety of sources to support FFE development and operations, in part because Congress denied the agency's request for an increase in its annual appropriations in each of the past three years (i.e., FY2013-FY2015). Prior to FY2013, CMS used discretionary funding from its Program Management account—supplemented by a small amount of discretionary funding from the HHS Departmental Management account—for FFE development. The agency also used mandatory funds from the Health Insurance Reform Implementation Fund (HIRIF), which is administered by the HHS Secretary. The ACA established the HIRIF and appropriated $1 billion to it to help pay for administration of the law (see earlier text box).¹⁵

In the FY2013 budget, CMS requested an increase of $1.001 billion for its Program Management account for FFE operations and other activities. However, Congress did not provide the agency any additional discretionary funding for FY2013. CMS instead used funds from other sources to help pay for ongoing administrative costs associated with FFE operations.¹⁶ Those funds included (1) discretionary funds transferred from other HHS accounts under the Secretary's transfer authority;¹⁷ (2) expired discretionary funds from the Nonrecurring Expenses Fund (NEF);¹⁸ (3) mandatory funds from the HIRIF; and (4) mandatory funds from the Prevention and Public Health Fund (PPHF).

¹⁸ The Nonrecurring Expenses Fund is an account within the Department of the Treasury. The HHS Secretary is authorized to transfer to the NEF unobligated balances of expired discretionary funds. NEF funds are available until expended for use by the HHS Secretary for capital acquisitions including facility and information technology infrastructure. Congressional appropriators must be notified in advance of any planned use of NEF funds.

Note: The HIRIF amount was provided by the HHS budget office.

In the FY2014 budget, CMS requested an increase of $1.397 billion for its Program Management account for FFE operations and other activities. But, as in the previous fiscal year, Congress did not give CMS any additional funding. The agency relied in FY2014 on transferred departmental funds as well as NEF and HIRIF funding to help support the FFE.¹⁹ However, Congress blocked the use of PPHF funds by CMS that year. FY2014 also was the first year in which CMS collected FFE user fees, a total of $252 million (see Table 1). Under the ACA, exchanges are permitted to charge participating insurance companies an assessment or user fee to generate funds to support their operations.

In the FY2015 budget, CMS requested an increase of $227 million for its Program Management account to fund FFE operations and other activities. Once again Congress denied the agency's request for additional funding. CMS will collect an estimated $850 million in FFE user fees in FY2015 (see Table 1) to help support FFE operations. But with most of the HIRIF funds already obligated, and a continued block on the use of PPHF funding, CMS this year will have to rely on discretionary funding sources for FFE operations, in addition to the user fees.

In FY2016, CMS estimates that it will spend $2.189 billion on FFE operations, of which $1.514 billion (69%) is projected to come from user fees (see Table 1). The agency is requesting an increase of $270 million in its Program Management funding.

There is no comparable ACA funding information for the IRS, which is administering the law's tax provisions, including the premium tax credit and other subsidies. The IRS has not provided (or been instructed by Congress to provide) a breakdown of its spending on ACA implementation. Like CMS, the IRS requested additional funding for ACA implementation in each of the past three years: $360 million for FY2013, $440 million for FY2014, and $436 million for FY2015.²⁰ But, as with CMS, Congress has not provided the IRS with any new funding. In fact, Congress cut the IRS's funding for FY2015 by $346 million (3%). According to the HHS budget office, the department transferred to the IRS a total of $526 million in HIRIF funds over the FY2010-

¹⁹ See footnote 15.

FY2014 period to help support ACA implementation.²¹ HHS has transferred much smaller amounts from the HIRIF to the Department of Labor ($5 million) and the Office of Personal Management ($6 million).²²

In FY2016, the IRS is requesting an increase of $474 million for ACA implementation.²³

The nursing education loan repayment program repays 60% of a registered nurse's educational loans in return for a two-year commitment to work in a health care facility with a critical shortage of nurses. Participants may have an additional 25% of their loan repaid in exchange for one more year of service. The nurse scholarship program offers scholarships to individuals attending nursing school in exchange for at least two years working in a health care facility with a critical shortage of nurses. Together the two programs, which are authorized under PHSA Sec. 846 and collectively known as NURSE Corps, received $94 million in FY2010, $93 million in FY2011, $83 million in FY2012, $78 million in FY2013, $80 million in FY2014, and $82 million in FY2015. B, Sec. 1828) prohibited the transfer of funds from the Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund (PHSSEF) to support the U.S. Public Health Sciences Track. The PHSSEF is an HHS account administered by the Secretary. Congress has historically used the PHSSEF to provide one-time funding for non-routine activities. Each fiscal year, Congress appropriates amounts to the PHSSEF for specified purposes. ACA did not authorize or appropriate funds to the PHSSEF.
- c. This funding request is for a new Health Workforce Diversity Program to replace the Health Careers Opportunity Program.

Appendix A. Discretionary Spending and the Budget Control Act of 2011

Congress has taken a number of steps since FY2010 to limit federal discretionary spending. During negotiations to complete the FY2011 appropriations process and avert a government shutdown in early 2011, lawmakers agreed to cuts in discretionary spending for a broad range of agencies and programs. The President then signed the Budget Control Act (BCA) of 2011,²⁴ which established enforceable discretionary spending limits, or caps, for each of FY2012 through FY2021.

The BCA also triggered annual spending reductions beginning in FY2013 for both defense and nondefense spending. All the spending on programs and activities summarized in this report falls within the nondefense category. The BCA spending reductions involve a combination of automatic across-the-board spending cuts to nonexempt programs through a process known as sequestration, as well as lowering the BCA-imposed discretionary spending caps. More details on the BCA annual spending reductions are provided in the text box below.

Trends in Nondefense Discretionary Spending

Nondefense discretionary (NDD) spending includes such activities as transportation, education grants, housing assistance, public health programs, biomedical research, veterans' health care, most homeland security activities, the federal justice system, foreign aid, and environmental protection.

According to CBO, federal NDD spending has represented a fairly stable share of the economy since FY1962, averaging about 3.8% of gross domestic product (GDP). NDD spending was at its highest between FY1975 and FY1981, when it averaged almost 5% of GDP. It increased again between FY2009 and FY2011 as a result of stimulus spending under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). During this period NDD outlays represented 4.5% of GDP.²⁵

NDD spending as a share of GDP is now declining and fell to 3.2% in FY2015, CBO estimates.²⁶ Under the current deficit-reduction policies, CBO projects that NDD spending in FY2016 will fall to its lowest level as a share of GDP since FY1962 and will continue to decline thereafter.²⁷

Annual Spending Reductions Under the Budget Control Act

The BCA amended the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (BBEDCA) by establishing two budget enforcement mechanisms to reduce federal spending over the 10-year period FY2012 through FY2021. First, it established enforceable limits, or caps, on discretionary spending for each of those years. The discretionary spending caps grow by about 2% each year. Second, the BCA created a Joint Committee on Deficit Reduction to develop legislation to further limit federal spending. The failure of the Joint Committee to agree on deficit-reduction legislation triggered automatic annual spending reductions for each of FY2013 through FY2021. The BCA specified that a total of $109 billion must be cut each year from nonexempt budget accounts. That amount is equally divided between defense and nondefense spending. Within each category—defense and nondefense—the spending cuts are divided proportionately between discretionary spending and nonexempt mandatory (i.e., direct) spending. Under the BCA, the spending reductions are achieved through a combination of sequestration (i.e., an across-the-board cancellation of budgetary resources) and lowering the BCA-imposed discretionary spending caps.

The BCA requires that the mandatory spending reductions in each category—defense and nondefense—must be executed each year by a sequestration of all nonexempt accounts, subject to the BBEDCA sequestration rules. Discretionary spending in each category is also subject to sequestration, but only in FY2013. For each of the remaining fiscal years (i.e., FY2014 through FY2021), discretionary spending reductions are to be achieved by lowering the discretionary spending caps for defense and nondefense spending by the total dollar amount of the reduction. Thus, congressional appropriators get to decide how to apportion the cuts within the lowered spending caps rather than having the cuts applied across-the-board to all nonexempt accounts through sequestration. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is responsible for calculating the percentages and amounts by which mandatory and discretionary spending are required to be reduced each year, and for applying the BBEDCA's sequestration exemptions and rules.

Congress has since revised the discretionary spending caps set by the BCA. The American Taxpayer Relief Act of 2012 (ATRA; P.L. 112-240) adjusted the FY2013 and FY2014 caps. Then the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2013 (BBA13; P.L. 113-67, Division A) established new caps for FY2014 and FY2015 and eliminated the cap reductions for those two years that were required under the BCA. Similarly, the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 (BBA15; P.L. 114-74) established new caps for FY2016 and FY2017 and eliminated the BCA-triggered cap reductions for those two years.

Impact of BCA on Nondefense Spending to Date

The FY2013 sequestration order reduced spending on nonexempt nondefense mandatory programs by 5.1% and reduced nondefense discretionary (NDD) spending by about 5.0%. These amounts reflect adjustments made by ATRA, which reduced the overall dollar amount that needed to be cut from FY2013 defense and nondefense spending. [Note: Under the sequestration special rules, cuts in CHCF funding for community health centers and migrant health centers are capped at 2%.]

The FY2014 sequestration order reduced spending on nonexempt nondefense mandatory programs by 7.2%. OMB lowered the FY2014 NDD spending cap (adjusted by ATRA) by $37 billion, pursuant to the BCA. However, BBA13 established a new NDD spending cap for FY2014 (i.e., $491.8 billion), which was more than $22 billion above the BCA-lowered FY2014 spending cap that it replaced, and almost $24 billion above the FY2013 post-sequestration NDD funding level.

The FY2015 sequestration order reduced spending on nonexempt nondefense mandatory programs by 7.3%. The FY2015 NDD spending cap (i.e., $492.4 billion) was virtually unchanged from the FY2014 NDD spending cap, both set by BBA13.

The FY2016 sequestration order reduces spending on nonexempt nondefense mandatory programs by 6.8%. Under BBA15, the FY2016 NDD spending cap is set at $518.5 billion, which is about $26 billion above the FY2015 cap.
